Kerry has become fascinated by the story of George Heron b1746 and living in Daresbury Hall. She has researched him in depth and now his story has been published on the Heritage Open Days website. 'One Man, a Thousand Stories' - read about it here

Thanks to Stuart Allen for these pictures of Norton Level crossing and signal box - we'll show you more and tell you its story at one of our meetings.

This was the picture that sparked my interest in local mills. Thanks to all of you who came to my talk in January. Since then, we have found more references to a mill in Daresbury. Not sure if it was powered by wind or water, but there was a baby, Maria Kirkham, baptised at Daresbury in 1723, the daughter of John Kirkham, a miller. I'm sure there's more to be found!

Next meetings - all in the Lewis Carroll Centre, 7pm for 7.30pm

March 25	Keckwick Hill Stones
April 22	Landowners in the 19th Century
May 20	AGM - 'Show and Tell'

Please email us at chair@ddhg.org.uk if you have any queries or would like to suggest any content for our next newsletter which is due on June 1.
